Note: JW COLENSO his uncle was a man of stubborn courage and liberal intelligence, whose trials and appeals form one of the most interesting controversies of the Victorian church. Not until 1911 did the bishop of Natal recover the diocesan endowments lost to the group which had stayed loyal to the deposed bishop. For a further New Zealand connection with JW COLENSO, see the Revd Joseph Harris WILLS. (MWB)

Positions
1908-1913 lay missionary (supported by New Zealand Church Missionary Association [NZCMA]) temporarily in charge San Cristobal [Makira] and Ugo (Pawa) diocese Melanesia (389) – his reports in the Southern Cross Log show he was a leader in training the singers at S Barnabas Norfolk Island.

CRAWSHAW was the last to be supported by NZ CMS as a missionary in Melanesia; these white missionaries were to be appointed by the bishop of Melanesia in consultation with the officials of New Zealand CMA. The initial call of Bp GA SELWYN to evangelise in the islands was continued in this initiative, and the popular financial support for the work of the Melanesian Mission (based in Auckland) did not (as had been feared) suffer from this new group’s initiatives. The NZ CMS saw itself as fulfilling in local terms the same policies as the English CMS, which formally embraced an Evangelical piety. Tensions grew: the New Zealand CMA wished to be a separate missionary society, not accountable within the synodal provincial structures of the New Zealand Anglican church. A bill to form a provincial board of missions was pushed back at the general synod meeting in Nelson (ca 1912) for discussion at the diocesan synods. Only after much resentful discussion 02 Oct 1919 the New Zealand Anglican Board of Missions began its life. The presenting issue was the question: who controls the missionary agencies? The societies themselves or the Anglican church? W SADLIER the new bishop of Nelson (vice MULES) was more willing for the general synod and thus the church of New Zealand to be the overall responsible authority: this brought splits within the Evangelical supporters of CMS. O KIMBERLEY as general secretary for the New Zealand CMS was a strong supporter of the principle that the Societies work within the church and not on their own. (421;208)

07 Dec 1913-1915 curate New Plymouth diocese Auckland (278)

Jul 1915-Oct 1916 missionary priest (sponsored by NZCMA Church Missionary Association [from 1917 NZCMS]; the last to have this sponsorship as conflicts about churchmanship brought withdrawal of CMS sponsorship of New Zealand missionary recruits to work in the diocese of Melanesia) at Norfolk Island diocese Melanesia (421;26)

but c1920 in protest at financial support for others than Evangelicals, he went to court against the NZ CMS, with funding support by the Revd F SAMPSON, also an exclusive Evangelical and he was sacked for his opposition to the support of NZ CMS leadership given to the Board of Missions agreement to associate the NZ CMS with the other missionary agencies, the diocese of Melanesia, the diocese of Polynesia, the Chinese Mission in New Zealand, the North China Mission (Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts [SPG]), Jerusalem and the East mission (421;208;69)

30 Dec 1847 ‘...Mr Thomas DALE, whom you will remember as having been proposed to become a student at Islington College [CMS].....came to New Zealand in connection with the Propagation Society [SPG]. He manifested the leaven of Popery and has on this account been requested by our Bishop to return to England...This dismissal has greatly rejoiced me. Still there are some particular points to which a change remains desirable. I refer to intonation of prayers and the two candlesticks at the Collegiate Chapel....the Cathedral services at home...were alleged by our Bishop as grounds for the practice. Intonation would take well with the Natives; some of my own congregation asked me already about it, but I have given them a most decided refusal.’ The Revd G KISSLING to Henry VENN CMS

The prosecution was abetted by the protestant Church Association (president Dr Frederick Gilder JULIUS father of Churchill JULIUS), and his resistance was instigated by the high church English Church Union

Comment: a bishop in England (sometimes Canterbury, sometimes London for it too had an historical link of responsibility with the isolated Anglican churches overseas, could agree to ordain a man on the understanding that he would go to ‘the colonies’ and not stay on in England; however, while New Zealand was a colony (from 1841) it was a dominion (from 1907); the Church of England continued to use the old terminology for the English Church had little self-governing authority and obsolete formal legislation remained in place MBW

Elliott Crescent Hastings mostly likely named in his honour
As a curate in All Saints he was expected to ride a bicycle, but one Sunday he interrupted his sermon to say he wanted to get an illustration.
With that he wheeled his pushbike from the baptistery up to the front, lent it against the pulpit and announced, ‘my text today is “Well done thou good and faithful servant.”’ In a few weeks, he had a car.
Known in Pongaroa for towing a trailer behind his car to collect bottles and sheep dags for parish funds.
He would milk cows for sick dairy farmers in his parishes and very practical for example arranging the district to help a wife run the farm when her husband walked out on her.
It is said that one Easter weekend he had his family lay concrete at the vicarage while he took services and helped in between.
[I remember him coming to a family baptism and blessing us at the end “May the Lord bless those you love and those you find it hard to love.” A typical blessing of service chaplains. RAB]

Notes

John Albert FENTON was from a junior line of landed-gentry family and is not found in Burke; he claimed that many of his old Yorkshire family rest under Sheffield parish church SS Peter & Paul [the subsequent diocese of Sheffield made this (1914) the cathedral]
His brother Francis Henry FENTON was a leading supporter of the incipient Anglican community in Dunedin and thus its priest JA FENTON; he was principal collector of subscriptions for ‘Otago Episcopal Church, school, and parsonage fund’ (Lyttelton Times) – full details of items sought for the church (linen, bell, organ), and names of donors and the amount subscribed provided, a long list and first on the list is the Bishop of Guiana [William Piercy AUSTIN], all people willing to support the laity and the priest FENTON in Otago (The Times);

Education
Apr 1904 by the bishop of Nelson admitted as a deaconess of the Church in cathedral Nelson (27 Apr 1904 Colonist Nelson) at death ‘last woman of the Evangelical Order of Anglican Deaconesses’ Note: (1890-1914) the Sisters of Bethany were made deaconess by the bishop of Christchurch; Marian FILLEUL is the only example I have found of a deaconess made by another bishop; in the 1920s the bishop of Waiapū did initiate training and ordination of deaconesses for individual ministries in that diocese. Auckland diocese did not ordain but rather professed sisters for the Home of the Good Shepherd.
[MWB] since Michael made that note two deaconesses ordained in Dunedin diocese have been added to BBD (RAB)

Note on the franchise and women in New Zealand society and in the New Zealand Anglican church From 1893 women had the vote as New Zealand citizens; however the Anglican church continued to restrict voting rights in parish matters to men. MWB (11 Feb 1898) Anglican general synod meeting at Christchurch: Sir John HALL introduced a bill to grant the parochial franchise to women;
the motion was lost.

Note I have included FitzGERALD because he served in the part of the diocese of Melanesia which from World War 2 was in the diocese of New Guinea: he is not eligible for the Cable Clergy Index of Australian clergy because he had gone from the diocese of Melanesia before that part of the diocese (scilicet the Northern Archdeaconry of the diocese of Melanesia) was put inside the Australian church. So lest he be lost, I have given him this place. MWB

16 Feb 1925 before the magistrate, two charges of having indecently assaulted two boys, aged 10 and 7 respectively. Accused ... pleaded guilty and was admitted to the Supreme Court for sentence (Evening Post). The accused did not attempt to harm the boys, and indicated that he had been committing offences of this nature for some time past.
21 Mar 1925 after the offence committed in the Woodhaugh Gardens when he gave two boys lollies, ‘He was admitted to five years’ probation, a condition being that he entered a mental hospital as a ‘voluntary’ patient and remained until discharged by the superintendent. Medical opinion was that he was not of unsound mind so as to be committed. The Judge [Mr Justice SIM] expressed the opinion that he was on the ‘border-line’. So is any other man who is so sexually filthy as to do what this ‘Reverend’ gent did; but if any other man is not insane enough to be committed to an asylum, in such circumstances, he is sent to gaol … ’ New Zealand Truth

Note: REGINALD was central in a spiritualist group at Havelock which became ‘the Society of the Southern Cross’; Fr James Charles FitzGERALD CR met with them during the (1910) Mission of Hope to New Zealand, and provided his support. In 1912 Dr Robert FELKIN a Chief of the Order of the Stella Matutina and inspector of the Societas Rosicruciana (Rosicrucians) for Australasia arrived; a home for the order was constructed, ‘Whare Ra’ [House of the Sun] designed by major Wellington architect CHAPMAN TAYLOR; WW SEDGWICK bishop of Waiapū and later W PANAPA the bishop of Aotearoa were members. At its peak ca 1926 the order had a total of 300 members; GARDINER and Dr Robert William FELKIN were both vestry members at S Luke Havelock North. The vicar through that period was Kenneth Edward MACLEAN. FELKIN had spent a spiritual retreat in 1903 at Mirfield after the death of his first wife. Note on Tabernacles

Early 1950s at the request of Fr GAULT a new reredos and tester designed by architect Don DONNITHORNE were installed behind the high altar with a new tabernacle set on the gradine in the centre of the reredos between the six candlesticks. AK WARREN as bishop of Christchurch ordered the removal of the tabernacle and the parish priest mounted it on the north wall of the Pilgrims’ chapel, and had set in the vacant place where the tabernacle once stood on the high altar a large red Chi Rho [ancient symbol of Christ] with a brass plate which stated, ‘This tabernacle was removed by the order of the Lord Bishop of this diocese, Pray for the peace of Jerusalem’. On observing them when at the altar for a Confirmation, the bishop of Christchurch ordered the removal of the Chi Rho and the brass-plate, and on GAULT publicly apologised for his actions.

1963 on retirement of C GAULT as parish priest Christchurch S Michael, WARREN ordered the removal of the tabernacle from the church; it was accepted by JC VOCKLER bishop in Polynesia for the cathedral in Fiji [2000 not found in use there]

2012 A later successor the Revd PO WILLIAMS just before retirement set a tabernacle again on the high altar. 2022 The wakahuia damaged in the 2011 Canterbury earthquake was repaired and has replaced it. The tabernacle is now in the sacristy where it holds the holy oils. For a more serious but similar conflict, see the entry for ALLERTON, ARTHUR RUSSELL. Episcopal hostility to tabernacles continued.

About 1976 a tabernacle (purchased in London through the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament and donated by (the Revd) Des BRITTEN (SSC) then churchwarden) was installed on the south wall of the sanctuary of S Barnabas Roseneath Wellington; the bishop of Wellington EK NORMAN allowed the tabernacle to remain (1978) only on condition that I did not have it set in the familiar central place upon the altar.

1981 The British High Commissioner Sir Richard STRATTON expressed to the bishop of Wellington his great surprise at this restriction, for he had never worshipped in London at a church which did not have the tabernacle on the high altar. However, NORMAN was now able to claim (not without a hint of whimsy) that this installation on a side wall was in accord with the liturgical guidelines issued after the Second Vatican Council. (MWB)

Personal comment
Bishop GERARD told me that some years previous he had taken the service for the regional Boys Scouts, and he considered it had been soundly Catholic in word and action (‘I am a Catholic’), but the leader of the Goldthorpe scouts came afterwards to ask him when were they having mass. ‘He assured me “That were a nice service but we were expecting we would have mass”.’ In the 1950s the liturgy at Goldthorpe was only and fully Roman rite and as the Book of Common Prayer rite was very different, the scouts were puzzled by this ‘Holy Communion Service’. GERARD was clearly delighted to be able to tell me of this encounter and his courteous apology to the Goldthorpe boy scouts for their disappointment at not having a proper mass. 17 Apr 1903 inquiry by church authorities: ’indisposed’ and so failing to appear for services, but seen heavily intoxicated Saturday night in the main street, others disliked his ‘American twang’, attendance numbers and choir numbers falling off, vestry insulted as he claimed he could do better without a vestry as they were all dishonourable, he had refused to bury an unbaptised child; GOVER countered that the vicarage had been built through his efforts and furnished at his own cost, he had been in ministry 25 years and not a word had been said against his character ever.
28 May 1903 sued by FINN a Waihi solicitor (Auckland Star)
NELIGAN bishop of Auckland made a pastoral visit to address the problems and he chastised the people:
03 Jul 1903 an observer wrote anonymously to the Auckland Star, that 'if he [GOVER] had been very obedient ... to the tiny little tin gods that rule the district ... he would have succeeded with them'. Other insiders wrote that the priest was a 'cracked cup' (Auckland Star)
17 Aug 1903 at last vacated the vicarage on the arrival of BUCKLAND the new vicar (vice)
