Note: REGINALD was central in a spiritualist group at Havelock which became 'the Society of the Southern Cross'; Fr James Charles FitzGERALD CR met with them during the (1910) Mission of Hope to New Zealand, and provided his support. In 1912 Dr Robert FELKIN a Chief of the Order of the Stella Matutina and inspector of the Societas Rosicruciana (Rosicrucians) for Australasia arrived; a home for the order was constructed, 'Whare Ra' [house of the Sun] designed by major Wellington architect CHAPMAN TAYLOR; WW SEDGWICK bishop of Waiapū and later W PANAPA the bishop of Aotearoa were members. At its peak ca 1926 the order had a total of 300 members; GARDINER and Dr Robert William FELKIN were both vestry members at St Luke Havelock North. The vicar through that period was Kenneth Edward MACLEAN. FELKIN had spent a spiritual retreat in 1903 at Mirfield after the death of his first wife. NOTE ON TABERNACLES

Early 1950s at the request of Fr GAULT a new reredos and tester designed by architect Don DONNITHORNE were installed behind the high altar with a new tabernacle set on the gradine in the centre of the reredos between the six candlesticks. At WARREN as bishop of Christchurch ordered the removal of the tabernacle and the parish priest mounted it on the north wall of the Pilgrims’ chapel, and had set in the vacant place where the tabernacle once stood on the high altar a large red Chi Rho (ancient symbol of Christ) with a brass plate which stated, ‘This tabernacle was removed by the order of the Lord Bishop of this diocese, Pray for the peace of Jerusalem’. On observing them when at the altar for a Confirmation, the bishop of Christchurch ordered the removal of the Chi Rho and the brass plate, and C GAULT publicly apologised for his actions.

1963 on retirement of C GAULT as parish priest Christchurch S Michael, WARREN ordered the removal of the tabernacle from the church; it was accepted (together with the CH VINE in Polynesia for the cathedral in Fiji (2000 not found in use there)

2012 A later successor the Revd PO WILLIAMS just before retirement set a tabernacle again on the high altar.

For a more serious but similar conflict, see the entry for ALLERTON, ARTHUR RUSSELL.

About 1976 a tabernacle (purchased in London through the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, and donated by (the Revd) Desmond BRITTEN (SSC) then churchwarden) was installed on the south wall of the sanctuary of S Barnabas Roseneath Wellington; the bishop of Wellington EK NORMAN allowed the tabernacle to remain (1978) only on condition that I did not have it set in the familiar central place upon the altar.

1981 The British High Commissioner Sir Richard STRATTON expressed to the bishop of Wellington his great surprise at this restriction, for he had never worshipped in London at a church which did not have the tabernacle on the high altar. However NORMAN was now able to claim (not without a hint of whimsy) that this installation on a side wall was in accord with the liturgical guidelines issued after the Second Vatican Council. (MWB)

Bishop GERARD told me that some years previous he had taken the service for the regional Boys Scouts, and he considered it "rather a strange service" because of the difference in the rite of prayer and the handling of the sacraments. The scouts were clearly not familiar with the Catholic liturgy, and when asked if they were Catholic, they said, "I am a Catholic." At this point, the Bishop explained that while the Boy Scouts were soundly Catholic in word and action, the service was "not quite what they expected." He pointed out that some things, such as the handling of the Eucharist, might seem unusual to the scouts.

Note
31 Jul 1856 royal letters patent issued: HARPER as bishop of Christchurch was stated to be subject to the see of Canterbury and to the bishop of Sydney as his metropolitan

25 May 1857 in a court case, Regina v Provost and Fellows of Eton College and the Revd John Alexander CLARKE (HARPER's successor as vicar of Strasbourg Mortimer, appointed by Eton patron of the living), the Lord Chief Justice CAMPBELL ruled that a bishop appointed for a colonial see had no connexion in law with the church of England - her Majesty's patent was 'not worth the parchment upon which it is written'; therefore, the appointment of CLARKE to the living of Strasbourg Mortimer by Eton as patron of the living was legal, inasmuch as HARPER was not a bishop in the Church of England the right of appointment to the living (vacated by HARPER on his elevation to the episcopate) had not passed to the Crown (see note 5, 296 Shaping a Colonial Church (2006:Christchurch)

1858 letters patent were modified: the bishop of Christchurch now subject as bishop-suffragan to the bishop of New Zealand as metropolitan (no longer was Sydney his metropolitan) while still under the jurisdiction of the see of Canterbury

31 Jan 1894 funeral ceremony report The Press – pallbearers Sir John HALL, the Honourable CC BOWEN, Messrs A CDW, BW MOUNTFORT, HP MURRAY-AINSLEY, JH HARGREAVES (and RIS HARMAN), Bishops JULIUS and NEVILL, H WELLS organist of S Michael & All Angels, presided, voluntaries an air by DVORAK and 'O rest in peace' (MENDELSSOHN), and HANDEL's Dead march from SAUL; Archdeacon LINGARD chair of the Christchurch cemetery board was in charge at the cemetery but thus not available at the cathedral; detachment of Colour-Sergeant Smith kept a space around the grave clear; a very long list of church and community leaders is provided in The Press report, and it noted among clergy of other churches that the RC vicar general, two Presbyterian, two Wesleyan Methodist, and the Revd A CHODOWSKI Hebrew represented their people; Bishop JULIUS officiated for the graveside service, assisted by Archdeacon CHOLMONDELEY, the choir sang 'I heard a voice from heaven' (possibly that by John GOSS?) and hymn 401 'Now the labourer's task is o'er'; the final tribute was from Mr William ROSE Farmer of Wakanui [nr Ashburton?] who came to New Zealand on the same ship as Bishop HARPER; a large proportion of those present filed past the grave to take a last look at the remains of the much loved and venerated Bishop. Several of the Kaipori Natives called at Bishop's Court on hearing of their beloved Bishop's death and were also present at the funeral. '... On a sloping pedestal draped with purple lay the coffin containing the mortal remains of Christchurch's first Bishop, attired in his Episcopate robes, with the arms folded as if for sleep ... four lighted tapers placed in the different corners ... coffin of polished kauri, the lid being raised to the shape of a cross, ... brass plate ... Below was engraved a Bishop's Mitre. (see The Press)

In Black Beech and Honeydew, Dame Ngaio MARSH writes of him, remarkably handsome with the profile of a classic hero, voice deep and harsh, his manner abrupt and conversation rather like that of the Duke of Wellington as recorded by Mr Phillip Guedella though without the expletives; reminded her also of Mr Rochester, he habitually walked on the Cashmere Hills on Saturdays and called for tea with Ngaio’s mother; he was also hotly pursued by members of a Ladies’ Guild; (p70) anecdote about his taking the family joint to deliver to those in need in [probably, MWB] Ellesmere parish during a time of agricultural depression

Members of the English committee asked by the bishops of New Zealand to organise the mission in England were Bp H H MONTGOMERY chair, Canon George BODY, Canon E A STUART, Canon CUTKIN, Canon WAILPOLE, the Revd A W ROBINSON and the Revd Harold ANSON as honorary secretary. The archbishop of York and the bishop of Lasaun had been on the committee but on accepting their present positions had to retire. Twelve clergy had been selected to proceed to New Zealand: Canon E A STUART Canterbury, Canon Charles Llewellyn IVENS Halifax, Prebendary H V STUART Stoke-on-Trent, the Revd J C FITZGERALD [CR] Mirfield, the Revd A B G LILLINGSTON Hull, the Revd T REES [CR], the Revd A D TUPPER-CAREY Lowestoft, the Revd Cyril HEPHER Newcastle-on-Tyne, the Revd G de CARTERET Burton-on-Trent, the Revd J G STOCKLEY Burton-on-Trent, the Revd C T HORAN Holbrook Hall Derby, the Revd H R W FARRER Bridport. (29 Apr 1910 The Press)

E Derings EVANS came too, and TUPPER-CAREY did come but went back early (it appears) as he was taking up a new appointment.

A paper with extremely limited opinions The English Churchman referring to the coming visit of Ritualist priests says: There will be a big invasion of New Zealand by Ritualistic priests early in September... Two Ritualistic priests from England are in New Zealand organising the mission. There are Canon KENNEDY who when in his own parish church wears vestments of a mass priest; and the Canon POLLOCK of Rochester who is a member of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, and of the English Church Union. Amongst the twelve Mission preachers we find the names of only four Evangelicals. As to the others, Canon [Charles Llewellyn] IVENS is a clergyman whose church was reported to the Royal Commission on Ecclesiastical Disorders for Ritualist practices. He is also a member of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, and of the English Church Union. The Revd J C FITZGERALD is a member of both the last named societies and he is also one of the Mirfield Monks. The Revd A D TUPPER-CAREY in his own parish church wears the vestments of a mass priest. The Revd Cyril HEPHER is a member of the Secret Society of the Holy Cross which issued The Priest in Absolution. He also is a member of the Romanizing English Church Union... I hope no Protestant incumbents in New Zealand will invite any of these Ritualistic clergymen to preach in their churches. The writer was Walter WALSCH a notorious anti-Catholic propagandist (06 May 1910 West Coast Times)

NELIGAN bishop of Auckland was critical of this article. Churchill JULIUS bishop of Christchurch offered to take a lead himself as a missioner in Christchurch diocese.

Comment

He valued the power of silent prayer when he experienced that with the Quakers hosted for a time at the Anglican church in Havelock North (21 Oct 2016 Church Times) detailing the success of the mission, said the general prosperity and the absence of conventionality seemed to stimulate interest in divine things (11 Feb 1911 The Press)

became violently insane on board, held in custody until his death
He appears from JS GUNDRY's diary to have been consumptive, but also severely depressed and with paranoid delusions; he was a college friend of James Edward FITZGERALD
'went to New Zealand to take charge of the settlement at Canterbury' - an interesting but erroneous claim, apparently provided by his family in England (2;43) (MWB)
1851 Mrs Charlotte GODLEY noted the 'sad state of the poor clergyman… who went out of his mind a few weeks after he came on board [the STEADFAST]. Now lodges with the doctor and is harmless, but wishes to kill himself… I hear he is consumptive, and has a bad cough… looks very ill… was at Cambridge with Mr FITZGERALD… He was quite harmless, but rather destructive, would throw candles or books in the fire and at times he would talk sensibly for an hour together.' (43)

1851 JS GUNDRY the surgeon on STEADFAST on arrival in Lyttelton reported that he was sending HODGKINSON's possessions to JE FITZGERALD (of the Canterbury Association and later Superintendent of the province of Canterbury)

member CBS (Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, devotional society promoting devotion to the eucharist)
member English Church Union (president usually C L WOOD Viscount HALIFAX )
'a legend in his lifetime, famous for his Men's Services which packed the church' (parish information online 26 Dec 2016)
A paper with extreme low-church opinions: The English Churchman referring to the coming visit of Ritualist priests says: ‘There will be a big invasion of New Zealand by Ritualistic priests early in September…’ Two Ritualistic priests from England are in New Zealand organising the mission. There are Canon KENNEDY who when in his own parish church wears vestments of a mass priest; and the Canon POLLOCK of Rochester who is a member of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, and of the English Church Union. Amongst the twelve Mission preachers we find the names of only four Evangelicals. As to the others, Canon [Charles Llewelyn] IVENS is a clergyman whose church was reported to the Royal Commission on Ecclesiastical Disorders for Ritualist practices. He is also a member of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, and of the English Church Union. The Revd J C FITZGERALD is a member of both the last named societies and he is also one of the Missions’ Monks. The Revd A G TUPPER-CAREY in his own parish church wears the vestments of a mass priest. The Revd Cyril HEPHER is a member of the Secret Society of the Holy Cross which issued The Priest in Absolution. He is also a member of the Romanizing English Church Union. … I hope no Protestant incumbents in New Zealand will invite any of these Ritualistic clergymen to preach in their churches’. The writer was Walter WALSH a notorious anti-Catholic propagandist (06 May 1910 West Coast Times). NEUGAN bishop of Auckland was critical of this article. Churchill JULIUS bishop of Christchurch offered to take a lead himself as a missioner in Christchurch diocese.

1851 Mrs Charlotte Godley describes him. ‘.. a little fussy upstanding man, whose very bow and style of greeting, tone, manner, words, all have on them the very stamp of humbug … and forbid the idea of considering him what I have been used to call a gentleman. An outside of easygoing good-nature, not for an instant concealing a most careful watch over his own interest; and selfishness, even about armchairs, and the things he likes to eat; and complete want of reverence in his use of sacred words and expressions… Always self-seeking and inaccurate… his great cleverness and excellence as a land sale commissioner and the remarkable eloquence of his sermons. 1852 published one star differing from another star in glory: being a discourse on occasion of the funeral of the Duke of Wellington, preached at the parish church of S Mary Stoke Newington on Sunday November 20th 1852
1851 Mrs Charlotte Godley describes him. ‘.. a little fussy upstanding man, whose very bow and style of greeting, tone, manner, words, all have on them the very stamp of humbug … and forbid the idea of considering him what I have been used to call a gentleman. An outside of easygoing good-nature, not for an instant concealing a most careful watch over his own interest; and selfishness, even about armchairs, and the things he likes to eat; and complete want of reverence in his use of sacred words and expressions… Always self-seeking and inaccurate… his great cleverness and excellence as a land sale commissioner and the remarkable eloquence of his sermons. His manners are most unpleasant.’ She liked Mrs Jackson better, ‘in some ways very good-looking. Better than her husband, and with … a very good figure, and beautiful hands and arms; so that she looks and moves like a lady in spite of herself.’ She with chagrin noted that Bishop Selwyn ‘could not, and did not, conceal his contempt and even dislike’ of T Jackson. SUTER as ‘Prime’ issued necessary document for Standing committees to confirm the election, but the bishops of Wellington
HADFIELD and of Dunedin NEVILL ignored the letter as SUTER was not the primate so long as HARPER had not resigned the primate; were the primacy vacant, only then all would be well and confirmation could proceed:
early Feb 1890 JULIUS wrote he would stay in Ballarat until all settled:
25 Feb 1890 he with his family expected to sail ROTOMAHANA departing on 18 Mar 1890 for Bluff New Zealand, to spend time (a

Jan 1913 introduced by WC SADLIER bishop of Nelson to OTL CROSSLEY bishop of Auckland, and then commended to AW AVERILL bishop of Waiapū for ordination
Note: The SPG correspondence suggests that as an ordinand KELHAM was passed on by the bishop of Nelson SADLIER to the bishop of Auckland CROSSLEY and that KELHAM at that point was given assurances that he would be (as he hoped) made deacon by the bishop of Auckland CROSSLEY. However CROSSLEY resigned very suddenly; the bishop of Waiapū AVERILL then stepped in for the planned Auckland diocesan ordinations, which had necessarily been suspended on the resignation of the bishop of Auckland CROSSLEY. In consequence at these ordinations KELHAM was made a deacon by the bishop of Waiapū AVERILL (taking the place of the resigned Bishop CROSSLEY) acting as the commissary of the primate (NEVILL bishop of Dunedin) and with the authority of the primate of the New Zealand church, NEVILL bishop of Dunedin. However subsequently AVERILL the same man who as the bishop of Waiapū had ordained KELHAM deacon, on his translation from Waiapū to the see of Auckland - in which see he succeeded the resigned CROSSLEY – now declined to ordain KELHAM to the priesthood and clearly regretted his earlier action when as bishop of Waiapū (acting as commissary for the primate NEVILL bishop of Dunedin) he had made KELHAM a deacon.
In sum: KELHAM was ordained deacon because of CROSSLEY’s commitment to this ordination; when the decision whether to ordain him priest was in the power of CROSSLEY’s successor, AVERILL the next bishop of Auckland declined to ordain KELHAM priest and he had to go overseas for that.
Thus we are provided with an interesting example of the complex constitutional procedures of the New Zealand Anglican church, particularly around episcopal responsibility for ordinations. (MWB;see SPG files)

(in the Solomon islands) three suffragan bishops, one of whom would be the suffragan bishop of Tonga and Polynesia (based in Fiji) were mooted in the New Zealand Board of Missions and the Australian
Board of Missions, as well as with STEWARD the bishop of Melanesia and the English Melanesian Committee (see New Zealand Church News, 69) until:

(Feb 1925) the New Zealand general synod added the missionary see of Polynesia to the missionary diocese of Melanesia as the two missionary dioceses formally now ‘associated’ with the Church of the Province of New Zealand)

Note
The Blain Biographical Directory includes priests ordained before 1931 who served in the Anglican church province of New Zealand. Harold LAWRENCE was ordained in 1936, well beyond that closing year. However during the first years of World War 2 LAWRENCE served in the Northern archdeaconry of the diocese of Melanesia; this archdeaconry then included Bougainville and New Britain, provinces geographically part of New Guinea. Before the end of World War 2 this Northern archdeaconry of the diocese of Melanesia was transferred out of the diocese of Melanesia and incorporated into the diocese of New Guinea. As the diocese of New Guinea was part of the Anglican province of Brisbane (Australia), the region was thus part of the Anglican church of Australia and no longer part of the diocese of Melanesia and the province of New Zealand.

By the date of that change of jurisdiction LAWRENCE had left the old diocese of Melanesia and returned to England. As a result of his leaving New Britain before the region became part of the Australian church, he has no place in the Cable Clerico Index of the Australian church.

To ensure that he is not lost from view I have included him in the BBD. MWB

[Historical Note on Norfolk Island and New Zealand:]

(1788) Norfolk Island was settled from Sydney, later abandoned, later re-settled as a 'place of secondary punishment', subject to the government of NSW and (from 1836) the bishop of Australia.

(1840) transportation of convicts to NSW ceased, and continued to Van Diemen's Land [Tasmania] until 1853

(1840) Norfolk Island (remaining as a penal settlement) came under Tasmanian colonial jurisdiction and (1842) after the creation of the diocese of Tasmania under the bishop of Tasmania

(1856) GA SELWYN tried to buy land on Norfolk Island as the base for the incipient Melanesian mission. Sir William DENISON the governor of NSW and governor-general of the Australian colonies (the latter office being titular only and ceasing in 1861) objected to SELWYN’s proposal because he did not want Norfolk Island to be the centre of SELWYN’s Melanesian mission – he referred to ‘the influence of the savage Melanesians on Mr [George] NOBBS’ carefully-guarded and child-like flock’ of people of mixed-European race

(1866) under Sir John YOUNG successor to DENISON the Melanesian mission did purchase land Norfolk Island:

(1867) Norfolk island was the headquarters for the missionary diocese of Melanesia, and thus part of the Anglican province of New Zealand

(1913) administration of Norfolk Island was transferred from the NSW state to the Australian federal government.

(1919) after the headquarters of the diocese of Melanesia moved from 5 Barnabas Norfolk islands to the Solomons, the parish of Norfolk island continued to be staffed by chaplains appointed by the diocese of Melanesia. Over many years the financial support by the local residents for their parish priest was insufficient; this settler parish was thus a burden on the missionary diocese of Melanesia

(05 Aug 1938) Norfolk island was formally transferred to the diocese of Sydney, and thus the Anglican church of Australia.

27 Jan 1896 death notice The Times
Note: *But the full reasons are provided in a letter of the Revd Joshua JONES to F de Jersey CLERE, in congratulations on the latter’s appointment as diocesan architect: ‘misunderstanding with the Bishop from whom, LEECH complained, that he had received such a reprimand as he had not experienced since he left school. His stipend (only £150 per annum) was left unpaid though the District had raised and sent down enough to pay it. He wrote: on further enquiry he found that the arrears dated back to [John Lloyd] KEATING’s time, and had not been allowed to interfere with the regular payment of [CARUS] WILSON’s stipend in the meantime; that he had ‘written temperately to the bishop and got a rocket back’: LEECH with relief accepted the offer from Sydney, renewing an offer he had declined two months earlier; problem of ‘KEATING’s American ideas of finance, and they [local people] complain that ‘the church is a byword for its frequent changes [ie of clergy] and general unsatisfactoriness’; that they ‘lay the chief blame of their misfortunes on [RJ] THORPE’, in which they only partially make out their case; ‘low regard THORPE is held generally now’, noting the ‘freedom of TOWGOOD and LEECH about THORPE’. LEECH a personal friend of THORPE previously ‘now says he [THORPE] is weak-minded, unpractical and incorrigibly meddlesome … morally crooked … intriguing to make himself bishop; that [Arthur] ‘STOCK thinks the bishopric is his by right upon next vacancy’, that he ‘does not help cordially between the existing or the two expectant bishops’. Bishop [HADFIE LD] is ‘chiefly at fault by yielding to THORPE in sending up the 1st scamp [CARUS WILSON] and then an invalid’ [LEECH]. ‘As to the first of these, the last news is that he [CARUS WILSON] returned to England in the BRITISH QUEEN, that he went ashore in Rio [de Janeiro] and got very drunk and came back to the ship and thrashed his wife’. on his return to Hull he made critical comments: the New Zealand church was nerveless, aslep, anaemic, and self-satisfied. He was struck with the prevalence of a Socialism which had been fostered by the Labour government during the 25 years in power. In a large parish of 13 000 it was a usual thing to have a congregation of 130, and he found in some places churchwardens who had not been baptised; in their response the Revd H A KENNEDY of Horbury vicarage and the Revd Cyril HEPHER of S John Newcastle were extremely annoyed.
KENNEDY had been the colleague of Canon POLLOCK in the advance campaign. (24 Apr 1911 Evening Post)

Note: LONGDEN was ordained in 1932, two years beyond the terminal scope of ordinations for usual inclusion in the Blain Biographical Directory. He served in the diocese of Melanesia particularly in New Britain a region transferred (1947) to the Anglican provincial jurisdiction of Queensland (part of the Church of Australia). As LONGDEN served in New Britain before this transfer (1947) to the Australian church, he has no place in the Cable Clergy Index of the priests of the Anglican Church of Australia which includes priests only from the Australian church. Let he be lost from view, he is included here in the Blain Biographical Directory. (Feb 2009 MWB)

09 Mar 1964 obituary Evening Post Wellington
03 Mar 1964 Hawera Star

Note: I suspect that his reputation as a fund-raiser in the context of the parishes of Gomillle and Hawera caused the organising committee to suggest to Bishop Holland that DBM be offered the organising secretary’s job when two secular fund raisers turned down the job. As a clergyman he was offered a stipend considerably less than the secular rate but also more than his parish stipend. DBM was chosen because in Gomillle he had succeeded in eliminating a parish debt and the building of a new vicarage in the period 1923-1935 when he was vicar during the Great Depression. Bishop Sprott had made him a canon for his efforts. In 1935 he succeeded to the parish of Hawera and helped that parish to eliminate a debt of over £4,000. To do this the family chose to live in a delapidated vicarage in which previous vicars had refused to live and to dispose of two better houses. After the debt was removed, he then helped the parish to raise most of the funds for a new vicarage.

In the 18 months, from 1938 to 1940, DBM as Organising Secretary for the Cathedral Appeal travelled the diocese often in the company of the bishop persuading parishes and individuals to contribute to the Cathedral Fund, and a parallel fund for the extension of parish work called "The Bishop's Fighting Fund". DBM however resigned his position in 1940 as he felt the Cathedral Appeal ought not to proceed during the 1939-45 War. He returned to Hawera, the new vicarage eventually being built in 1948.” (Jan 2002, pers comm, his son the Revd John Malcolm to MWB)

Thomas Lindsay HALBERT was also known as Tommy SHORT or Tame POTO for he was 1.57 metre tall, and as ‘Henry VIII’ for he too had six wives. He was a whaler on the East Coast, settling on Mahia peninsula, and later again at Gisborne. In Feb 1851 Donald McLEAN (chief land purchase commissioner) ordered gunpowder to be seized from; he became the first person tried in Turanga magistrate’s court for supplying gunpowder illegally to natives [sic]. He sold (letter of 27 May 1869 but purchased earlier for farming) land to William WILLIAMS when bishop of Waiapū.

MILNER took action against the one person who was accusing him who then said he was misinformed and retracted his slanders. Captain ERSKINE and the officers all denied the alleged imputations against MILNER.

The bishop of Sydney (BROUGHTON) did not proceed with the investigation as he accepted the charges were retracted. 16 April 1899 photograph of bishop with the Stanley Steamer car he brought back from England, outside Bishops grove, outside chauffeur, his 1st wife in the back seat in high plumed hat, and bishop standing to the right of the picture in frock coat and striped hat. That his nephew 'uncle Ted' was skinny and austere, and the bishop impatiently remarked 'Ted will have all these children!'; and that family got all the NEVILL money. That Bishop NEVILL had a set of a dozen silver table cutlery, all with P engraved on them, from the PENNY family, whence his money. Aunt Linda left her share to her family, and also the Nottingham lace veil, a PENNY heirloom worn by her aunt at her wedding 1890 Personal: my grandmother Wilhelmena Heidemann ISLIP told me that her German grandmother Johanna HEIDEMANN a gold miner’s daughter ‘taught music to the children of the bishop of Dunedin’: if these ‘children of the bishop of Dunedin’ were in fact the NEVILL children adopted by the bishop of Dunedin, then the indirect story might conceivably be true. Furthermore the NEVILL family background was Moravian, as my great-grandmother ISLIP resided in the Moravian religious community Ockbrook Derbyshire, such a link becomes a coherent possibility – at the most.
