A MONTHLY BULLETIN
OF THE
CHURCH OF SAINT MARY THE VIRGIN
NEW YORK

VOL. XVII OCTOBER, 1948 No. 7
Dear Parishioners of St Mary's,

As we begin the fall and winter season we regret to announce certain changes in our official family. Last spring our esteemed Director of Music, Mr Ernest White, resigned on account of ill health. At the same time our organist, Mr Edgar Hilliar, also resigned since he was an appointee of Mr White.

Mr Hilliar has accepted a position as Music Director at St Mark's Church, Mt Kisco, New York, where he is looking forward to a work of his own and where the good wishes of his friends at St Mary's will follow him.

Mr White, at my urgent request, has agreed to withhold his resignation in favor of a year's leave of absence. During this time he will undergo medical treatments which must at frequent intervals incapacitate him. Fortunately, these treatments can be given near his home in Canada where he can relax and rest whenever it it necessary to do so. We shall pray for his recovery to health so that next fall he may again take up his usual activities as our Director of Music and again be happily a daily part of the official family. Fortunately during his sojourn in Canada he will take the position of Principal of the Music Teachers' College, University of Western Ontario, London, Ontario and in this position will organize the Music Department. I say fortunately, for blessed be work which will help while away the hours of recuperation and convalescence.

I am happy to announce that during the coming year two of Mr White's pupils will, under his direction, maintain the high standard of liturgical music which St Mary's treasures and for which she is justly famous. Mr Edward Linzel will act as Choir Master and Miss Marie Schumacher as Organist. Both are known to the St Mary's family through recitals they have given at the church. Both, I am confident, will receive an appreciative welcome from the congregation. At regular and not infrequent intervals Mr. White will, God willing, be with us, thus continuing to supervise the music at St Mary's as he has so notably done during the several years that are past.

Affectionately yours,

Gracy Tabor

FORM OUR PARISH MISSIONARY

THE last time I wrote I was looking forward to the arrival in the Philippines of two new members of our staff, two deacons — the Reverend Ellsworth Chandlee and the Reverend John Frederick Harriman. Fortunately they were able to arrive in good time for the opening of our second academic year. The tremendous help the larger staff has given the Seminary is already noticeable. The courses have now been divided among the staff in a proper way. The students are better taught, and the Warden is not nearly so harried as he once thought he was.

The number of our students has diminished by three this year, making the total enrollment seventeen. It is possible that our numbers may diminish still further for the next year or two until such time as our Mission schools are turning out graduates. St Mary's School in Sagada will have a graduating class in 1950, the first since before the war. From then on our vocations are likely to increase. The war has set us back.

In this regard it is interesting to recall some of the speculations the Mission staff made during their internment. The consensus then seemed to be that the war would set the work of the Mission back some ten years. In the enthusiasm of our return after liberation we saw almost instant progress, but as the life of the Mission is getting back to normal we can see more clearly the gaps and gashes. The original figure of ten years is nearer right than we had supposed. However, there are bright spots.

In July, four out of the seven men who graduated from the Seminary took their Canonical Examinations. It was very gratifying that they all passed. It will not be long before they are ordained to the diaconate and then to the priesthood.

Settling down after the opening of the new academic year is much the same at St Andrew's as it is in any seminary. However, the confusion is more intensified, and the process of adjustment is slower here than in seminaries in the United States. The first day or two is always spent in organizing the student body into a form of student government. Work details are then assigned. Our students do most of the work, such as preparing vegetables, washing dishes, cleaning the building, caring for the grounds and making minor repairs. After the long vacation there is a great deal to be done. On first thought it would seem that this system takes time from needed hours of study, but on the whole, if the work details are well organized and supervised, the time spent in work is not burdensome. Physically and spiritually the advantages are considerable. Also this system is of great importance in teaching the seminarians the care of church and community property.

There have been some amusing aspects to the opening of our school year. We have a new boy who lives on the seminarians' side of the building who helps clean the quarters of the clergy. One evening recently I went to his room to ask him to do an errand. He was already sleeping soundly. Next to his bed and as close to his head as possible were hung, from ceiling to floor, branches of a guava tree. It was an odd sight, and I asked the others what it meant. I was told that he was protecting himself from the spirit of his sister who died recently. The explanation accounted for an episode which had thrown the whole dormitory into confusion a few nights before. About midnight we awakened to the smell of smoke. We went from room to room searching for the blaze. As we entered the room of the boy, Pablo, we saw through the smoke a neatly wound cloth burning slowly in a tin can. Pablo awakened and readily admitted starting the blaze before he went to sleep. This was another instance of an attempt to keep the ghost of his sister from disturbing his rest. He had been trying some different, ancient, pagan custom each night. It is ever strange to see clear manifestations of paganism in a thoroughly Christian environment. It is stranger yet when one realizes that Pablo comes from a Lowland family which has been Christian in name for some four hundred years.

The seminarians are in the midst of taking their physical examinations. In earlier letters I have indicated the high rate of tuberculosis in the Philippines. The disease increased during the war and is still on the increase. The great difficulties in combatting tuberculosis are the lack of isolation and sanitary facilities, the lack of opportunities for necessary rest and the lack of protein foods. Of course, we are hoping not to find any infection among the students. However, if we do, and the disease is in the early stages, there is an excellent chance of clearing it up. Last year we had what were at one time serious cases but which were still in the doubtful stage, yet with regular hours, proper rest and extra food, the students were given an absolutely clean bill of health at the end of the year. This was made possible through a generous supply of milk given by Church World Service and by applying many of the kind gifts of the parishioners of St Mary's towards better food for the men affected.

You may be interested to know something further of the way in which we have used the money gifts from St Mary's. The most substantial gift was applied as a scholarship. Another generous gift went toward the support of another student. We have recently had repairs made on the exterior of the chapel in an effort to combat the excessive heat of the interior. Last year during the hot season the chapel was so hot that it was the last room in the building we wanted to spend our time in, which was a great pity since the chapel is the center of our life. The cost was three hundred thirty dollars which was impossible to meet within our budget. I have been able to help towards the support of two promising High School students. It is surprising how much good these two expenditures of five dollars and two dollars and fifty cents per month have done. Other amounts have gone for educational, physical and spiritual needs of our own students and some few others outside the Seminary. All of the gifts have been of the greatest help. Our thanks go out to you again.

We are still a long way from meeting the needs of our transportation problem. Father Diman who lives in the Mountain Province has lent us a car for the short period of the rainy season. We are going to miss it when we must give it up next month. I am still hoping to convince our friends that transportation is not a luxury for us in Manila where subways and buses cannot be found on almost every corner. Gradually I am applying what we can afford toward this need. We have about 2300 pesos, and we need about 2100 pesos more. We are a long way from our goal, but we are moving toward it.

The faculty and students join me in sending our thanks, prayers and love for the continued encouragement and friendship which St Mary's is giving us.

NOMADIC NOTIONS
The Church is not Big Business

"But above all, truth beareth away the Victory." Probably most of us would subscribe to that statement without hesitation. It is a venerable sentiment and still is approved today, as witness the Public Library on Fifth Avenue, on the front of which the words appear.

But do we really believe what the words say? Would it not be well to give some thought to the matter, rather than to agree on the authority of general popularity? Do we actually want truth to be victorious — at all times and in all circumstances?

These and similar nomad thoughts are apt to arise in the mind of a layman at this time of the year. Particularly is this true in the case of a layman who is in some slight wise concerned with the financial affairs of his parish.

As summer draws to a close the spate of literature rises. Letters (that is, form-letters), expensive brochures, pamphlets, graphs, charts, outlines of plans and all manner and forms of writings pour in, to the complete demoralization of the recipient, or the engorgement of his waste-paper basket, depending on the extent of his years and experience.
If he is a man in active business, as he should be to justify his post in the parish, and if he happens to need the usual allowance of sleep, he simply has not the opportunity to read, much less to study, the wealth of material showered upon him.

But he is conscientious; most lay officials of parishes are, or they would not be lay officials; and he reads as much as he can make time for. It is from such perusal that the questions arise.
Is it true, as much of the literature implies, that the Gate of Heaven, so to call the Church, has been closed for the summer?
If it is true, are we proud of the victory that that truth bears off?
Much of the literature concerns itself with ways and means of reopening the Gate for the winter season; and it appears that the approved method is to do this with a bang by means of some new campaign.

The records are cluttered now with accounts of campaigns that started with a bang — and petered out. No chart is needed to show the vast number of projects that are now making their insistent appeals to churchmen, and no graph could be made to show how few churchmen have money, time or strength enough to respond, even in extreme moderation, to any considerable proportion of them, no matter how keenly said churchmen might desire to do so.

A portion of the flood is concerned with the discovery of dire needs. These invariably have to do with the poor and unfortunate, and one cannot help wondering why these discerners regard their findings as discoveries. Poverty and misfortune are at least as old as our religion.

But, no matter what the source of the particular segment of the flood, the method of erecting levees against it, to carry the simile a step farther, is always the same. A committee must be formed, a plan must be adopted, a statement (largely statistical) must be issued, and a campaign must be launched — with a bang.

If the object were to elect someone to a governmental position, or to sell vast quantities of nylon stockings or even to ensure the success of a theatrical entertainment, the technique might be successful, but it is a little difficult to fit it into the relation of God to His children, which seems to certain laymen to be at least one of the important activities of religion.

The fact of the matter is that the Church is not big business.
The two are as diametrically opposed as any two things can possibly be.

Let it be said at once that this is not intended to imply that religion is all purity and big business is all evil. With the moral aspects of the two we are not now concerned at all; only with the methods by which they may be worked. And in the interest of that truth which is claimed to be victorious, it seems desirable to say now and then in a small, retiring and rather scared voice, that the same methods by which large numbers of a new type of washing-machine are sold will not necessarily and infallibly promote the Kingdom of God — or even bring a substantial measure of support to it.

For long years there has been a curious reliance upon business methods to solve the ills and support the needs of the church.
Where the idea originated we have not space to discuss in this paper, but it is difficult to understand how anyone can give serious thought to the matter and still place his reliance on the similarity.
To take but a few points of differences by way of illustration. Big business is concerned with mass production and distribution.
Surely no one supposes Christians can be made by assembly-line methods, and then be scattered throughout the world. Big business deals, for the most part, with known quantities, whereas the life of the spirit is completely intangible. Big business buys for a price and sells for a price; and the Church can do neither, unless she is to prostitute her great commission.

The most important difference, however, is one that is rarely referred to: the purpose of big business is diametrically opposed to the purpose of religion. The purpose of the former is to get, of the latter to give. A man is in business, big or little, to get money. He sometimes parades other reasons, but that actually is the compelling reason. If he abandons business he will probably eat less well than he does now. If he abandons his attempts to practice his religion, the reverse will probably be true.

This fundamental, but usually suppressed, fact would seem to be worth consideration when attempting to force the methods of big business upon the church.

Last season the readers of AVE expressed much appreciation of a series of articles under the title “Sidelights of Old St Mary’s” written by our valued Parish Treasurer, Mr Newbury Frost Read. Upon the confident urging of the Editor of AVE, Mr Read is again favoring us with a series of articles, the first of which here-with appears. These articles will be appreciated especially as coming from the pen not only of the Parish Treasurer but of a faithful layman of Holy Church. It is always good to hear the “voice from the pew”.

PARISH NOTES

THE Woman’s Auxiliary will hold its monthly meeting on Friday, October eighth, in St Joseph’s Hall at 10:45 a.m., preceded by a Corporate Communion in the Lady Chapel at nine-thirty. The meeting will be opened with a short address by our Chaplain, Father Taber, followed by a business meeting. Garments made for the Missions during the summer are to be returned at this meeting. The Mission Table, which has enabled the Auxiliary to expand its splendid work, will be continued this season.

In the report of the work for last season published in the June AVE the Editor, with slight respect for figures, failed to say that the missionary work done for various Missions reached a total value of $1292.64. May he be forgiven and may he add his conviction that heaven is a state marked by the total absence of figures!

DO you value AVE? If so we should greatly appreciate an annual contribution from you to help with the expenses of publication.

TO ST MICHAEL AND ALL ANGELS

Hail St Michael! Valiant champion of our Lord!
Loud with clash of arms the courts of Heaven rang
The day you led your angels forth to meet embattled pride —
Met and cast out the sin that dared to challenge Love’s authority.

How dear we hold you — Michael the Lord’s standard bearer!
Fearless knight in shining armor,
Wielding your sword to slay presumptuous pride,
Leading your Hosts victorious
To make obeisance before the Throne of God.
Full panoplied with pride of power
You come in all humility to lay this pride
Low at the feet of Him who gave it,
Rejoicing in your servitude.
O Bondman of Love — I hail you!
