Dear Parishioners of St. Mary’s,

Most of us have been sufficiently away from Saint Mary’s during the summer holiday season to make us love her, our spiritual home, all the more. Absence does make the heart grow fonder! However, if we love Saint Mary’s, we shall seek to give her our all and receive from her very graciously all that she has to give us. Genuine love is a two-way affair always, — giving and receiving.

As a new fall and winter season of work and worship opens, may we all be determined in our love of all that Saint Mary’s stands for, — namely, the fullness of Catholic Faith and Practice. Such determination will call for Catholic action. We shall be in our places at many of the very many Masses Saint Mary’s offers. We shall swell the line of penitents as the Sacrament of Holy Penance is administered. We shall present ourselves for sermons and instructions that we may rejoice in the good news of the Gospel and in the practical glory of the Faith. We shall frequently go through Saint Mary’s open doors to find ourselves in silent adoration before the Tabernacle. We shall receive the Bread of Life in Holy Communion regularly and frequently lest we faint by the way and give up the climb from earth to heaven. We shall accept the godly discipline imposed by Saint Mary’s on us in the name of the whole Church Catholic. We shall help others into closer union with Christ by our prayers and our alms. We shall bring others out of darkness into the light that shines in this and every other Catholic parish.

May we all grow in love and gratitude for Saint Mary’s, proving that love and gratitude by our Catholic action.

Affectionately,

THE KNOW-HOW IN CATHOLIC LIVING

How to Become a Firm Believer

Who is a firm believer? He it is who is unshaken in his belief that there is a reason for the hope that is in him, that truth lies behind Christian living, that doctrine or dogma is a proper basis for Christian thinking and that a creed as a plan for action makes sense. In all this, however, the emphasis must be placed on Christian living, Christian action. Why? Simply because that is where our blessed Lord placed the emphasis. Listen to His divine words: "If any man will do His will, he shall know the doctrine, whether it be of God." So it happens that if we are to have a Christian creed we must first live a Christian life.

After all if we believe in or place confidence in God, we shall first act toward God as His children and not as mere members of the animal creation. By the same token, if we believe in a friend and have confidence in him we shall act in his favor and if our confidence is reciprocated he will act in our favor. The reasons for favorable action need not be formulated before the action. Rather they will be listed, if at all, during an extended period of calm reflection on loving service.

Recall to mind if you will the wording of the Athanasian Creed, that most detailed of all the creeds in formulating Christian belief: "The Catholic Faith is this, that we worship one God in Trinity and Trinity in Unity." Notice that the Athanasian Creed does not read "The Catholic Faith is this and that" but "The Catholic Faith is this, that we worship . . .". We are not called upon to give intellectual approval first of all. No, first we are called upon to act and to act through worship and so to come into relationship with God Whom the Doctrine of the Trinity sets forth to us. Indeed, we know God through worshipping Him, through doing His will, for the genuine worshipper so adores and reverences God as to surrender to Him his will and his understanding and his memory, — those faculties of the soul which God has given him while sharing with him His life.

If you will prove for yourself that belief follows on practice, try this experiment. Write your own paraphrase of the Apostles' Creed, that is, what it means to you today at your present stage of your Christian development in the spiritual life. Seal this paraphrase in an envelope and keep it unopened in a safe place for five years. Then, after this five years of Christian and Catholic living, write another paraphrase of the Creed and compare this with the one you penned five years ago. Your "I believe" will have become firmer and more confident as a result of that added five years of Catholic action.

When you stop to think of it, the Church Catholic wrote the Creeds only after she had experienced the joyful worth of her Lord's teaching. Then and then only she formally expressed that teaching in the Apostles' Creed and later in the Nicene Creed and still later in the Athanasian Creed. In each case she accepted back her corporate works as expressed to her satisfaction in the words of the Creed. For this reason you may safely think of the creeds as springboards from which she leaps not to original action but to renewed action. We may be sure that without the action, without the doing of God's will, the creeds would be for us dead formulas. This is why a great spiritual writer declared that the recitation of the creed in church should always be preceded by a flourish of trumpets. To this writer the creed is that which summons brave men to stake their lives upon its truth. In doing so they make the Christian life a great gamble in which, because of their own free wills, there are no final certainties but rather tremendous probabilities. It should be clear to us Christian men and women that we shall never win the Christian goal if we refuse to gamble simply because we cannot be sure of winning. How well we know that we must keep on battling to bring our wills into harmony with the will of God as He has revealed that will to us, with the hope that as we battle we may appropriate the merits of the Redeemer and thereby be kept on the way of salvation.

It will not be irrelevant here to note that a proper belief in the Church Catholic proceeds from the study of that Church from within rather than from without. To really believe in her we must experience in her a continuance of the Incarnation of her blessed Lord since it is through her that the graces and blessings He brought from heaven to earth are made available to us His followers. If on the other hand we study the Church Catholic from the outside as though she were merely an exterior organism with her Ministry and Creeds and Books and Formularies, such a study might satisfy us with the "dead letter" unless these all connect us with Jesus and bring us into willing and loving union with Him.

Would you become a firm believer? Then let your prayer be "Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief." In breathing this prayer ask the Holy Spirit to give you the grace of perseverance. Beg Him to make you strong enough daily to deny yourself and take up your cross and follow Jesus. Then you will firmly believe for your belief will be strongly imbedded in rich Christian living. The Christian life is workable, therefore the Creed that formulates that life comes alive!

AUTUMN

Now it is autumn and nature rests.
Gently, clad in soft grey, the evenings come.
Reluctant, morning rises to meet the day —
Light lingers.
Now God has harvested His gifts of spring and summer,
Gathered their beauty into great sheaves,
To wait the hour when winter
Shall take them in her strong kind arms,
And guard them for the day of life’s awakening —
That yearly miracle of loveliness, the earth’s rebirth!
But now — Hush!
Now it is autumn and God’s creation sleeps.

OUR LORD (10)

ALTHOUGH the Council of Ephesus in 431 had settled the theological issue of the Nestorian Controversy by declaring that our Lord is One Person, not two, and that therefore our Lady is truly the Mother of God; peace and quiet did not return to the Church in the eastern part of the Empire. The theological issues had been intertwined with a struggle for leadership between two rival schools of thought with their centers in Alexandria and Antioch. In turn these rival schools became involved with the contest for power between the Patriarchal Sees of Alexandria and Constantinople. The decision of the Council on the doctrine of the Person of Christ by no means put an end to these contests. So we find mixed up with the doctrinal question a good many side issues and much behind the scenes intrigue.

St Cyril, the champion of orthodoxy, had won the day at Ephesus; and this contributed to the prestige of Alexandria whose Bishop he was. He was succeeded by Dioscurus, who was much less of a theologian, but a man of tremendous ambition and lust for power. He found an ally in the confines of the Imperial Court itself at Constantinople, one Eutyches, an Archimandrite (Abbot) who was not without ambition himself and was a very sloppy thinker and theologian.

In order to understand what follows, one must realize that at this period the Greek speaking eastern part of the Church had not developed as exact a theological terminology as had the Latin speaking west. Such terms as person, nature and substance were still in a fluid state in the East, whereas the work of Tertullian over a century earlier had given them very exact meanings in Latin. This, combined with the sloppy thinking of Eutyches led to an immediate outcry when he began talking about the "one incarnate nature" of Jesus Christ. He thought he was following the teaching of St Cyril; but while he used St Cyril's words, he did so in such a way as to imply that our Lord's human nature was swallowed up and obliterated by His divine nature so that after the Incarnation He was fully divine but not at all human — or else that He was a third and entirely new type of being of a nature composed of elements of both mixed up together and indistinguishable. It is not clear which, but the result is equally bad in either case. His position is illustrated by his own comparison of a drop of vinegar being put in the ocean — the vinegar representing the human nature; the ocean, the divine. He was willing to say that there were two natures before the Incarnation, but only one after it. This is in itself preposterous, since the human nature did not exist before the Annunciation.

He was tried by a local council in the diocese of Constantinople and his teaching condemned. But such was the furore, that the Emperor felt it necessary to call a more general council. This council met at Ephesus in 449 and was dominated by Dioscurus, who was determined to vindicate Eutyches and thereby humble the Patriarch of Constantinople who had condemned him. By a series of slick political moves, Dioscurus managed to become president of the council, to exclude adequate representation either of the West or of the Antiochians, and to persuade the council to sanction the views of Eutyches. Most important of all, he prevented the reading of a letter from the Bishop of Rome, St Leo the Great, who had gone to great pains to set forth the orthodox doctrine of the person of Christ. This letter came to be known as "The Tome of Leo." It is one of the great theological documents of Christianity and a landmark in the development of the doctrine of our Lord. As we shall see, it was not written in vain.
Many leading bishops of the time, who had lost out at this Ephesian council and were deposed, appealed to St Leo of Rome for assistance. St Leo naturally took a very dim view of a council that refused even to read his official letter, called it a Synod of Robbers — which name has stuck to it ever since — and threw his weight into the controversy against Dioscurus. The controversy, far from being quieted by the Robber Synod, raged more violently than ever. It was, of course, never accepted by the Church and therefore never ranked as a General Council. Meanwhile a new Emperor came to the throne, the influence of Dioscurus at court disappeared, and a new council was called to meet in 451 at Chalcedon, a suburb of Constantinople, where the authorities could keep an eye on things and forestall such political maneuvering as went on in Ephesus.

This justly famous Council of Chalcedon was accepted by the Church as the Fourth General Council. It reversed the decisions of the Robber Synod, confirmed the condemnation of Eutyches, accepted the Tome of Leo and incorporated it in its own acts, and set forth its own Definition of the doctrine of the Incarnation which stands for all time as the answer to all its problems.

PARISH NOTES

Sunday, October the sixth, is the Feast of the Dedication, when as a parish family gathered at High Mass we give humble thanks to God for the privilege of worshipping in Saint Mary's, — truly a shrine of Catholic Devotion. The preacher at High Mass will be the Reverend Cuthbert Simpson, Regius Professor of Hebrew at Oxford University. While on the faculty of the General Theological Seminary Father Simpson celebrated several Masses each week at our altars and he is a true and much loved friend of the parish.

All parishioners will have received an invitation to attend the Annual Parish Dinner to be held this year on Monday evening, October the seventh at six-forty-five at Schrafft's, Fifth Avenue and Forty-sixth Street. The principal speaker at the dinner will be Father Simpson. This dinner party affords a happy occasion when your priests and the Sisters of the Holy Nativity look forward to greeting you socially. Promptly notify the Church Office of your acceptance as only those who hold dinner reservations can be seated.

The most important parochial organization is unquestionably the Church School where boys and girls are trained in Catholic Faith and Practice. The Saint Mary's Church School reopens at the nine o'clock Mass on Sunday, October the sixth, followed by classes of instruction. Every parent and godparent is in duty bound to see to it that their children attend Mass and instruction regularly each Sunday, preferably accompanying them.

A School of Religion is held in Saint Joseph's Hall each Friday night at seven-thirty. This year Father Bosshard will give instructions on The Creed. Come and bring your friends and plan to stay for the brief devotional service following the instruction, which service always closes with Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

In Saint Francis de Sales Shop you will find excellent pictures of the principal parts of High Mass at one dollar and fifty cents for a set of ten pictures. These pictures have great teaching value and we believe devotional value as well.

The Day Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary meets in Saint Joseph's Hall on Friday, October the eighteenth at ten-forty-five, preceded by a Corporate Communion at the nine-thirty Mass that day. Father Taber as Chaplain will open the meeting. The members of the Auxiliary are requested to bring to the meeting the contents of their "Mission Project" envelopes and also any sewing and knitting done during the summer months.

The Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary meets Tuesday evening, October twenty-second at seven-fifteen in Saint Joseph's Hall. After a brief business session Father Ogden, Rector of Calliaque in the cathedral city of Kingstown, Colony Island of Saint Vincent, will give a talk on the work of the Church of...
England in the West Indies, illustrated with colored slides. All women of the parish, including the members of the Day Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, are most cordially invited to be present.

The usual Dutch Treat dinner at six o'clock at Child's, Broadway and Forty-sixth Street, will precede the meeting.

THE Sacristy of Saint Mary's is now resplendent with new rubberoid flooring, — green and black checkerboard effect. A new tile flooring has also been placed in the ladies' room. These are the gifts of the Guild of Saint Mary of the Cross, aided by Saint Stephen's Guild. The parish is most grateful to all who worked for these improvements.

THE CATHOLIC MOUSE
The Blessed Mother sings a song
Softly in the night
To her wondrous little Son,
Awake in the night.
And the love of God rejoices
In her delight.
Blessed Mary, old and worn,
Awake in the night,
Hears the voice of God her Son
Singing in the night.
And the love of God rejoices
In her delight.

THE FRIENDS OF SAINT MARY'S

A group of Anglican Catholics here and abroad, who love Saint Mary's but who for geographical reasons cannot be communicant members of the parish, make up the Friends of Saint Mary's.

Would you like to become a Friend of Saint Mary's? The only requirements are, first, prayer for God's blessing on Saint Mary's and, second, an annual thank offering at the Patronal Feast, December the eighth. If you have said "It is a source of encouragement to me to know that Saint Mary's is always there," here is your chance to encourage that which encourages you. Write Father Taber today and receive your membership card.
